DEAD PSYCHIC TELLS OF LIFE IN HEAVEN!

WHY DID I KILL MY KID?

Because I had 'parent burnout,' that's why!

By SUSAN JIMISON / Staff writer

Single mom Sharon Bright says she suffered "parent burnout" — and that's her lame excuse for covering her 7-year-old daughter's face with plastic wrap and lying on top of her until she suffocated!

In fact, her burnout problem was so severe that a few moments later she tried to kill her 4-year-old daughter, too, but had to give up when the child fought back.

"I thought if they're not around, I don't have to worry about them," explains Sharon, 38, who pleaded guilty to murder and now she is serving 50 years in the Indiana Women's Prison. "That's terrible, I know."

But the prosecutor Michael Barnes, says the nursing supervisor wasn't burned out — she was just a cold-blooded woman who chose to murder her own kids rather than put up with the responsibilities they brought.

"Parental burnout — nonsense!" said Barnes. "She was a registered nurse making in excess of $30,000 a year.

"She knew of many, many options to solve this burnout problem that would be less drastic than suffocating her child to death," he said. "Everybody has some stress, but we don't kill our kids because of it."

According to police, the pudgy 215-pound mom said she'd been working seven days a week and worrying herself sick over her job, her money problems and her daughters, Jenny and Heather. She told investigators that she hadn't slept more than a few hours a day for weeks before the attack on the little girls.

One night as she paced the floor, the single mom thought of a solution to her exhaustion and worry.

She would snuff out the lives of her children.

"I just kind of stood there and looked at the kids and I just thought, there's got to be a better way," Sharon recalled. "I can't provide for them like I want to. And I just went and got the plastic wrap and put it over Jenn's nose and mouth and then she started fighting me. She kind of turned over and I just held it so there until she quit breathing.

"Then my thought was — well, if Jenny is in Heaven now, Heather should be there too. She was only 4 and she was too feisty, started crying and fighting."

After struggling for a while with Heather, she decided to spare her. She called 911 and confessed her crime, showing no remorse, according to police.

After her conviction for her horrifying crime, Sharon was given 50 years in the state prison. She spends her time teaching other inmates to read and thinking about Jenny and Heather, who now lives with her aunt in Salina, Kan.

"Every day I think about Jenny," she said. "I feel really terrible that I, as a mother, would do that to my own child. As for Heather, I don't know

WIFE KEPT IN A BOMB SHELTER FOR 30 YEARS

...after jealous hubby convinced her Russia had nuked the world!

By SCOTTY PAUL
Correspondent

An insanely jealous husband kept his unsuspecting wife entombed in an underground bomb shelter for an incredible 30 years — by convincing her the world above had been burned to a crisp by nuclear war.

Though Joseph Wickerman, 68, supposedly "sacrificed his health" to make trips outside their self-made prison, his terrified wife, Francine, 61, never went above ground because of her fear of radiation.

The couple's bizarre underground life-style came to light only after Joseph died of a heart attack and Francine left the shelter to find help.

"Her jealous husband devised a diabolical scheme to keep his pretty young wife away from other men, and she fell for it," said a sheriff's deputy. "He was more of a father figure than a husband because of the 14 years difference in their ages. She more or less did as she was told."

The couple went underground on Nov. 14, 1962, near Dickinson, N.D., after stocking their bomb shelter with tons of food, a generator and other necessities.

JEALOUS Joseph Wickerman persuaded his wife Francine that the world was in ruins and their shelter was their only hope.

Such a move was unnecessary, the deputy told The NEWS.

"They had absolutely no contact with the outside world for 30 years ... no TV, no radio and no newspapers."

Jealous Joseph began suffering from fears that his much younger wife would betray him sexually, the deputy said.

Since she was raised in an orphanage with no known relatives and he was the only child of parents long since dead, it was easy for him to make his selfish plan a reality.

A week after they sealed themselves in the underground tomb, Joseph ventured outside for about an hour or so.

He told deputies, "He said our world fears had been realized. The Russians had dropped three nuclear bombs on the U.S.

"He closed the steel trap door atop our shelter and locked it. Then he said we should pray for those poor devils above who had scoffed at thoughts of a nuclear attack."

Joseph made several trips outside the shelter as the years passed and returned with stories of death and destruction in the world above. Occasionally, he brought back charred tree limbs, burnt cans of food and other "evidence" of the scorched earth above.

"He told her people had gone crazy from the effects of radiation and were living like wild animals," the deputy said. "He said disease was rampant and babies were being born with horrible deformities.

"She was so convinced of the holocaust above ground that she lost all desire to leave the shelter. She was terrified."

Following her husband's death, Francine waited three days before she had enough courage to leave the shelter for help.

"She was shocked and confused to find the world even better than when she last saw it 30 years ago," said the deputy. "She has been taken to a hospital for therapy and a checkup. The poor woman hasn't seen a doctor for half of her life."

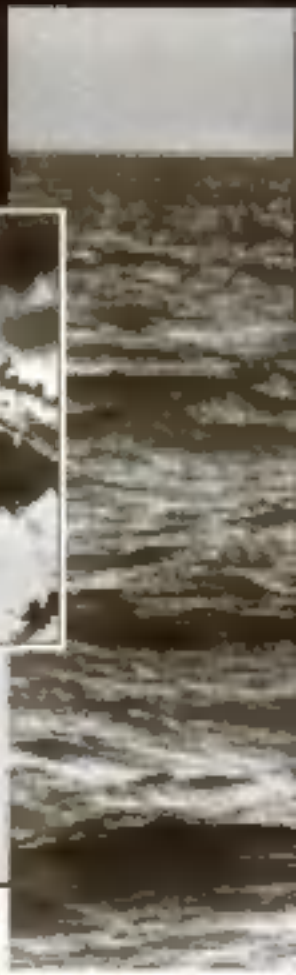
EIGHTY YEARS AFTER IT SANK IN

WORLD EXCLUSIVE

TITANIC

Horrified fishermen watch as ship's passengers jump overboard — AGAIN!



The U.S. Navy rescued 13 new survivors of the Titanic disaster on December 14 when the rusting remains of the sunken vessel mysteriously bobbed to the surface of the North Atlantic — with hundreds of screaming passengers still aboard!

By RICK MANN

Special correspondent reporting from Englewood Cliffs

That's the word from author and Titanic expert Philip Stames, who quoted highly placed Navy insiders as having said that the survivors were wearing the same 80-year-old life jackets that were issued to passengers when the ship sank on its maiden voyage from England to New York in 1912.

Reports are sketchy. But Stames says the Navy took the passengers to a research facility in Newfoundland for observation while investigators try to figure out what caused the dilapidated remains of the Titanic to surface — and how people who were thought to have drowned in 1912 could possibly be alive today.

"If you expect me to explain any of this, forget it — I can't," Stames, who is widely considered to be one of the world's leading authorities on the Titanic, told reporters in New York City.

"The Navy's analysis of the situation is quite preliminary and short of telling me that these survivors came to the seas' 1912 through a time warp, I don't know what the hell is also point is that the resting remains of the Titanic surfaced on the morning of December 14.

13 survivors picked up — still in the doomed ship's old life jackets!

"And from what I understand, the scene was witnessed and reported by the crew of a Norwegian fishing vessel that just happened to be in the area when the Titanic came up.

"In their statements to the Navy the fishermen said they saw hundreds of screaming passengers jump off the Titanic before it sank a few minutes after it surfaced," he continued.

"Most of the passengers who jumped ship weren't wearing life jackets and drowned almost immediately because the fishing vessel was experiencing engine problems and couldn't get close enough to rescue them.

"The captain had the presence of mind to radio for help, however, and a Navy research ship responded in time to save 13 passengers who were wearing authentic, Titanic-issue life jackets.

But as less an agency than the United States Navy says it happened and I, for one, believe the Navy."

Navy spokesmen acknowledged that one of their research vessels "engaged in a rescue mission about 400 miles west of Newfoundland on the morning of December 14, saving 13 lives."

But when they were pressed to confirm that the survivors had been passengers on the Titanic, the spokesmen terminated the interview.

No such confirmation at this time."

Stames himself quoted Navy sources and documents as saying that the survivors ranged in age from 21 to 45 and were carrying boarding passes and identification that place them on the Titanic in 1912.

The expert further noted that the survivors have no recollection of anything that has happened to them over the past 80 years.

He further noted that the ngers since they disappeared in 1912 and says they continue to insist that the date is April 14, 1912 — which is when the Titanic grazed an iceberg and sank on its maiden voyage.

The expert's sources didn't reveal the names of the men and women who were rescued. The Norwegian fishing vessel was not identified, either.

"The Navy clearly has more questions than answers and they aren't particularly thrilled with the idea that civilian experts are trying to get involved," said Starnes.

"For the time being the Navy is playing this extremely close to the vest," he added, "and I don't blame them."

HUMANS NO MATCH FOR CHESS-PLAYING CHIMPS!

PROUD trainer Trevor Ainslie

By JOE BERGER Staff writer

Crafty circus animal trainer Trevor Ainslie taught his mischievous chimps Willie and Lillie to play chess — and the amazing apes are so good they've now won eight tournaments in a row!

"My chimps have gotta be the smartest little apes on earth, bar none," tickled Trevor told reporters.

"Everybody said I could never teach a monkey to play chess, but these fur-balls not only play, they're whipping everybody. People who laughed at the idea of a chess-playing chimp went White and Lillie banned from tournaments — because they were beating every-mut's socks off."

The South African animal trainer turned his chimps into chess champs two years ago to win a bar bet with a buddy.

"My old friend and I were in a pub in Johannesburg, and he was chewing nails 'cause I'd whipped him three games in a row," recalled Trevor, 44.

"I was rubbing it in and said, 'Hell, I've got a trained ape that could beat you.'

"He laughed his head off and bet me 200 rand ($100) that no monkey could ever beat him. The circus was leaving town that night, so I sent the total time through. I'd put him up against a chimpanzee that could whip his butt.

"Of course, I didn't have a chimp that could whip his butt, but I knew I had a year to train one before we hit town again."

So the rugby trainer sat Willie down at a chess board and started teaching him the game.

"I used to be a pretty good chess player and I taught him everything I knew," said revved-up Trevor. "And ol' Willie, he picked it up faster than any human I ever saw.

"It was like the little guy was born to play chess, and after a couple of months, he was beating me nine times out of 10. He loved the game so much, it got so he'd cause a stink if I didn't play chess with him from morning 'til night.

"Finally, I had to teach his lady friend Lillie to play so he'd have somebody to compete with — and before I knew it, she was playing like a champ, too."

Clever Trevor started entering his chimps in local tournaments and soon the cruelty critters were cleaning up. Since May, Lillie's passed two tournament titles and Willie's won six.

Now, certain Trevor is challenging South Africa's champ to play his chimps — but so far it's no go. "I guess no stuffed-shirt chess player likes the idea of losing to a monkey," he said.

HOW TO TALK YOUR WAY OUT OF A TRAFFIC TICKET!

It's an odds-on bet that at one time or another you've tried to wheedle out of a traffic ticket, and chances are you still wound up with a date in court.

But in his book How to Talk Your Way Out of a Traffic Ticket ($4.95, CCC Publications), cop turned author David W. Kelly offers some good advice on how you might be successful. Here are a few of his pointers:

By DICK DONOVAN
Staff writer

● Pull over as soon as you realize the flashing lights you see in your rearview mirror are for you. The officer has chosen a safe spot and will respect your prompt response.

● Stay inside your car unless the officer asks you to step out. Jumping out of your car could be dangerous and the officer might be led to believe you have something to hide.

● Turn off the radio, roll down your window and get out your license and registration. Keep your hands in sight or the officer might think you have a knife, a gun or a flame-thrower. (It has happened!)

● Screaming and cursing or saying something cute like, "Why aren't you out catching some real criminals." This most definitely won't make any brownie points in your favor.

● Don't lie or try to woo the officer. He's heard every excuse in the book over and over again. Saying something like, "I was speeding to get gas before I ran out" isn't very original.

● Keep your cool. Try to show that you're really a nice person who made a mistake and knows it.

● Don't plead, burst into tears, say your aunt's best friend's husband is a police captain or hand over some cash with your license. Phony tears and bribery will only encourage a cop to start writing.

● Be dignified. If you're a female, be a lady. Don't bother hitching up your skirt or unbuttoning your blouse.

● And if he delivers a lecture, listen calmly. Remember . . . he's a cop and he's just doing his job.

SHARK EATS TEEN — AND HIS SAILBOAT!

Japanese tourist captures the boy's last horrifying moments on Earth!

By TONY CASSIDY
Correspondent

Scores of tourists watched in gut-wrenching horror as a teenage sailor went to his death in the slashing jaws of a great white shark — and the grisly scene was captured on film by a honeymooner from Japan!

Newlywed Numechi Iwakawa was photographing the boy as he sailed his catamaran off the beach of the South Pacific island of Fiji when the killer shark rose to the surface with its razor teeth flashing in the sun.

"My finger was just pushing the shutter button when the huge beast began its deadly attack," the 26-year-old bride told island police.

"It was a huge shark, at least 20 feet long. I could see it clearly because I was using a telephoto lens that made the scene appear to be only inches from my eyes.

"I remember hearing others on the beach screaming in horror as the shark snatched the boy in its jaws. But I was paralyzed. I couldn't move or utter a sound. All I could do was watch as the boy flailed his arms trying to break free.

"The shark had grabbed the boy around the waist and was shaking its head violently from side to side. In seconds, the shark's teeth had cut right through the boy's body.

"I watched the shark eat the boy in two big gulps. Then it turned on the boat. It actually chewed the boat to pieces before it finally swam out to sea. It all happened in a minute, but it seemed like forever."

Numechi's husband, Akira, recovered pieces of the 16-foot sailboat which enabled police to identify its owner as 17-year-old Ami Ragnars, whose parents run a small restaurant catering to island locals.

"I had to wade through water swirling with blood, bits of flesh and chunks of fiberglass," Akira said. "That's all that was left of the boat — and the boy."

HOW TO ZAP PAINFUL HEADACHES WITHOUT USING PILLS!

You can zap your headache without drugs, using tried-and-true home remedies that are recommended by doctors and other health experts.

The do-it-yourself treatments — which are easy to do and cost nothing — are guaranteed to banish that punishing head-pounder in minutes. And they help you avoid dependency on pain relievers, which can lead to stomach bleeding, iron deficiency or ulcers.

Of course, if you have recurring headaches or unusual, persistent pains in the head, you should see a doctor. But for occasional discomfort, here are some tips for relief:

● Brown bag treatment: Breathing into a paper bag can stop migraines before they take over, according to Dr. Selwyn Dexter, author of an article on migraines in the British Medical Journal. Breathing the carbon dioxide-enriched air for about 15 minutes or so will reduce or eliminate your headache.

● Food treatment: Some headaches are caused by hunger and can be banished by eating a high-protein snack, like a piece of cheese or a roast beef sandwich. Avoid sugary foods, as they will cause your blood sugar to skyrocket and then drop quickly, bringing back the headache.

● Miracle massage treatment: Experts swear by foot massage as an excellent technique for banishing the tension headache. Massaging the inner part of the big toe and the area on the foot beneath all the toes will usually release tension in the neck. Rubbing each toe between the fingers will help you locate areas in need of massage. When you've managed to soothe them, massage the sore places until all tenderness is gone.

● Hairbrush cure: Using a soft-bristled brush, banish your [illegible] headache by brushing in small circular strokes, covering about a half-inch of scalp at a time. Pay special attention to the area in front of the ears, a place where tension concentrates.

TWO-YEAR-OLD LOSES $1 MILLION JOB — BECAUSE HE SMOKES CIGARS!

TASTE-TESTER Paula Lamala smokes three cigars a day and it might cost him $1 million!

By KRISTIN MARIS

Two-year-old Paula Lamala has been fired from his $1 million-a-year job as the world's top baby food taster — because he is addicted to cigars!

The tot was fired as chief taste-tester by Nines Royale baby food company. "Smoking destroys the taste buds, so we can no longer employ Paula," a company official said.

But doting parents Angela and Montero Lamala of Madrid, Spain, are taking the company to court over the firing. "If we refuse Paula his cigars, he'll stop eating completely," his furious mom said.

Nines Royale conducted a search all over Europe to find the top taste-tester for baby food. The company had more than 5,000 children tryout for the job.

"When we see likes the food, he will lick and smack his lips and make animal like noises," said Mrs. Lamala.

"When he doesn't like what's dished up, he'll spew the vegetables out of his mouth and throw the bowl on the floor. It's just like a game to him."

Everyone was happy with the deal until Paula tried his first cigar four months ago — and was quickly smoking three cigars a day.

"The little guy picked it up from me," said Mr. Lamala, who smokes six a day. "He wants to be like his dad, and I'm proud of that."

When the company bosses learned of Paula's three-a-day habit, they threw a fit and fired the youngster.

"Everyone knows smoking affects your sense of taste," a company official said. "Plus, a cigar-smoking baby doesn't fit the image this company wants to portray.

"We devote a great deal of money to this new taste-tester's position," the official said. "We can't afford to let this pampered brat ruin our company."

The Lamalas, meanwhile, are ready for a court fight. "Nowhere in the legal papers does it say Paula is not allowed to smoke," said Montero. "It's not for them to decide what our son can do on his own time."

TERRIFIED Princess Di knew it was all over when Prince Charles held a seance to talk with the dead uncle

Forget the other lovers — the real reason Princess Diana split from Prince Charles is that the jug-eared heir to the throne became obsessed with the occult!

Diana, the world's most admired woman, got sick and tired of Charles seeking guidance with his dead great uncle and talking to his pianos. The end came when Di penned this killer note to her estranged hubby: "The roses are dead, the violets all shrunk, I'm sending you both, because you're a skunk!"

"Di has always had a secret fear of the supernatural and the unknown," says an old girlfriend of the princess, who was present when Di wrote this stinging rebuke.

Spooky seances and Ouija boards scared Diana stiff. "Up to the time of her marriage she would go to bed without turning a dim light on," says her pal. LOST TRIBE OF DINOSAUR PEOPLE FOUND IN AFRICA!

Discovery rocks scientific world!

By TONY CASSIDY

A team of French scientists has made what is being hailed as the most startling discovery in modern history — it found a tribe of dinosaur people living in the jungles of Africa!

Incredible, the savages, who speak in grunts and howls, have bone like spines protruding from their backs much like the reptiles of dinosaurs and even a few present day reptiles.

The amazing thing is that the spines, some of them up to 14 inches long, actually grow out of their backs — declared Dr. Jeanne Lulac, leader of the research expedition.

"Even the tribal children have spines."

Their amazing mutation is caused by some sort of genetic mutation, or these people have actually evolved from dinosaurs.

So far they have found a single species of humans who appear to have evolved from prehistoric reptiles but the existence of the tribe is overwhelming evidence that dinosaurs did not die out [illegible]

Thousands of tax$$ spent on loony-toons projects!

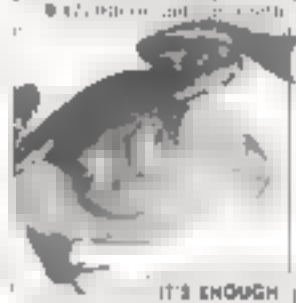
Fruitcake professors are robbing us blind!

I'm madder than a senator with an exploding cigar [redacted] dimwit bureaucrats in Washington are still blowing our hard-earned tax dollars on all [redacted] stupid projects that eggheads, government scientists and nutty professors dream up.

I love America, but when some bloomin' idiot can pick 50,000 bucks from Uncle Sam's pockets to find out if American and Mexican leopard frogs are sexually compatible, President Clinton ought to blow his stack and fire all the twits involved with something so stupid!

Let's face it, you and I work too damn hard for our money to have it spent on such things as:

- $47,000 to find out if pregnant flapjacks can hop as far as non-pregnant ones
- $37,000 to learn how many eyelashes the average person loses in one day
- [illegible]
- $43,000 to learn why old folks like to move down to Florida after they retire (because it's sunny there all year)
- $13,850 to find out if brats who pitch temper tantrums stupid be spanked or left alone (Slap the tar out of them, I say)
- $120,000 to study how 100 different languages describe color (Good God Almighty! That makes me wet myself!)
- $250,000 for a researcher to do a telephone survey to find out if telephone surveys work
- $46,217.14 to pay for a film script on the history of the American Communist Party (The title should have read: "How those loitering little liberal bureaucrats spend my money like they got pee instead of blood")



IT'S ENOUGH TO make you drunk! Frogs get $50,000 of fun and frolic — at taxpayers' expense — while orphan schoolkids starve. Shame with Minister Angel

It's like all this Save the Whales and Save the Manatee crap.

I've never even seen a whale, so what do I care if they're killed off for lobsters and ourselves out? I can always see the overgrown things splashing around on TV and in movies like Moby Dick.

And as far as manatees go, I didn't even know that those ugly fat-assed blobs existed until some wimpy, bearded folk sang of cuddling up the lads shilly-shallying over the stupid things. Now I'm not sure going to lose a wink of sleep over whether the last manatee has bought the farm or not. In fact, they ought to sell manatee burgers!

And I sure as hell don't want my tax money wasted on poking into the sex life of some dumb fish. Let 'em end up in cat food or the frying pan where they belong.

Our tax bucks ought to go for bellringers and state-of-the-art combat boots and helmets for the brave boys in our

Change the color of your dinner plates — & lose weight!

You can easily lose weight simply by using the right color dinnet plates, experts say.

"Some dish colors increase your appetite and make you eat more, [illegible] decrease your appetite," declared Maria Simonson, a top weight loss expert. Hot colors such as reds, oranges or yellows stimulate your nervous system and appetite and cause you to eat too much, she explained. "Cool colors — blues, greens — can slow your system down, keeping your appetite in check," said Simonson.

Other colors that can depress your appetite and help you lose weight are pastel shades such as, pale yellow, pale pink, green and gray, brown or white, Simonson said.

The expert bases her conclusions on color experiments she conducted with more than 400 people.

Simonson described the effects of color on appetite in her book The Complete University Medical Diet.

Jack Rubenstein, a communications expert, agreed.

"Certain dish colors like red and orange increase your appetite while other colors like light green and blue can depress your hunger and reduce your appetite," he said.

TEEN WHO BLEW AWAY HIS FAMILY GOES FREE!

...and little sister — then ambushed his dad in the driveway!

By JACK ALEXANDER

A brutal teenage killer who slaughtered his mom, dad and little sister during a bloody rampage has been set free — because of a stupid loophole in the law.

Maine murderer Brandon Carnell plans to attend college or land a job after serving less than five years at a boy's training school in Wolverine Lake, Mich.

Carnell was not quite 13 in [illegible] when he [illegible] with a shotgun because they picked on him. He was committed to a juvenile jail locked behind bars until his 19th birthday under Michigan state law. But relatives of the victims

Brandon could be released at age 18 on parole if [illegible] remains the system, said Judge Sandra Stoner. "I don't think the court has any choice."

Prosecutor Edward Lynn said outside of hearing before the judge that the young killer should stay behind bars until he's 21. Under a new state law passed since Carnell's horrible crime.

The triple murder that sent shock waves across rural Oakland County occurred on the evening of June 23, 1988. Carnell had made a decision to wipe out his parents and 11-year-old sister.

Coldhearted Carnell calmly gunned down his mother, Carol, 38, and sister, Candace, in the kitchen of their modest shotgun by the garage for his father, Michael, 37, to come home.

The young killer wounded his dad in the driveway and then finished him off in the [illegible] murders murdered the family, but later changed his story and confessed he did it — because they "picked on me."

"They'd spank me and [illegible] stuff for little things," [illegible] said. "I really hated my mom and dad. I got to know her, and then I [illegible] her, but I still hated her."

[illegible] hated each other. He and my mom never got along since the day I was born.

"I really hated my mom and dad. I got to know her, and then I [illegible] her, but I still hated her."

HERO ROOSTER SAVES DROWNING 3-YEAR-OLD BOY!

By CLAUDE LAURENT

Terrified 3-year-old Louie Corot fell into a pond in his backyard and nearly drowned before being rescued from the icy water — by his huge pet rooster. Boy!

"Everybody knows how much chickens hate water, but that big rooster jumped right in and dragged my boy all the way to shore," said the tot's grateful mom Mary.

Boy and Louie are great friends and that big rooster follows little Louie everywhere.

Then when my son got in trouble, Boy just wasn't about to let his little buddy die."

The ten-hour ordeal began one afternoon when Corot's 3-year-old Louie slipped away from his parents and headed for a pond near their home in the Milpitas, Calif., area. He was in the pond's deep end when he fell in.

The boy climbed onto a log at the edge of the water and soon found himself drifting to feet from shore.

"Just as I looked out my window, I saw the boy topple off the log and go under the water," recalled wheelchair-bound neighbor Nicole Pallister, 81.

"I grabbed the phone to call

New vitamin-mineral cocktail reverses aging!

A combination of vitamin E and the mineral selenium dramatically improves the physical and mental health of elderly people, a recent study shows.

"After 12 months on the combination, senior citizens were less depressed, had less anxiety, more interest in life, less fatigue, better appetite and could care for themselves better," said Dr. Matti Tuloonen of Finland's University of Helsinki.

The study enlisted 80 male and female subjects ranging in age from 80 to 92 years.

All were similar in terms of diseases, medications, diet and educational background.

They were broken into two groups of 15. One group received a daily dose of 400 milligrams of vitamin E and 1,765 micrograms of selenium, while the other group received placebos (inactive substances).

The study lasted for 12 months, with the patients being monitored every two months.

Said Dr. Tuloonen: "The patients receiving the vitamin E and selenium responded positively and started exhibiting improvement within the very first two months of supplementation.

"They did not suffer from any adverse side effects."

Dr. Tuloonen and a co-author of the study, Dr. Markku Huime, believe that the vitamin E-selenium combination affects the body's immune system and acts against disease and the aging process.

Dr. Tuloonen concluded: "While our study focused on geriatric patients, individuals of all ages can benefit from vitamin E and selenium in combination."

The researchers advised checking with your doctor before starting any similar vitamin-mineral program of your own.

LADIES MAKE BETTER BOSSES!

Lady supervisors are nice guys, say workers surveyed in a new study.

Researchers interviewed 451 workers and discovered that both men and women employees feel female bosses are Roaches on the roast beef made me want to puke!

AMERICA'S MOST OUTSPOKEN ADVICE COLUMNIST

Dear Dotti: My boss invited me to dinner the other night and you're not going to believe what happened after I got to her house.

When we were sitting down to eat, a pair of roaches crawled out from under the roast beef. Instead of apologizing, my neighbor flicked the bugs off the table with her finger and proceeded to serve me a big helping of beef. I wanted to vomit but I forced myself to eat. What would you have done? — Revolted in Marietta

Dear Revolted: If somebody served me "roach meat" I'd spit it in her face. Cockroaches carry diseases, fool. And you were stupid to eat!

You're crazy as hell to say all truckers are terrorists!

Dear Dotti: A few weeks ago you said truck drivers are terrorists because they tailgate cars and threaten them. Two of my close relatives drive 18 wheelers and they say truckers are the best drivers on the road. They say people in cars cause problems because they pull out in front of trucks. Get your facts straight before you shoot off your stupid mouth! .. Angry in Birmingham

Dear Angry: What did you expect your truck-driving relatives to say: "Dotti's right — we terrorize anybody who gets in our way?" Get with it, fool. They're covering their butts and everybody with a brain in his head knows it!

I hate seeing my neighbor's 19-year-old son naked!

Dear Dotti: I was having coffee with a neighbor recently when her 19-year-old son walked into the kitchen stark naked! Being the lady that I am, I tried not to stare. But his mother actually commented on how handsome he looked. I was floored. Dotti, I demand a answer — Stunned in Berryville

Dear Stunned: When creeps pull stunts like that you've got to think fast. Since most men are extremely sensitive about their masculinity, I would have told the kid "How disappointing. You look bigger in clothes." On the way out the door I would have told the mother "Thanks for the coffee, scorch brain. Don't ever rob my apple."

My husband beats me every day — and won't say why!

Dear Dotti: My husband slaps me around me every day, and won't even tell me why. I think about leaving him but he's sensitive and I don't want to hurt him. Help! — Hurting in Concord

Dear Hurting: If I've told you guys once, I've told you a thousand times: Never, ever, ever put up with abuse from your mate. Get out while you still have your looks and your self-respect. Don't wait for him to change. He won't. Get out!

You're the greatest, Dotti, keep up the fantastic work!

Dear Dotti: I've been reading your column for 15 years and it keeps getting better all the time. Thanks for all the great advice, Dotti. I'm your lifelong fan. — C.C. in Spartanburg

Dear C.C.: I hate to tell you this, skunk breath, but Weekly World News didn't even exist 15 years ago. The first edition was published in 1979 and the editors weren't lucky enough to get me on the staff until 1980!

Confidential

Dear Furious in Wilkesville: I didn't call your husband a shiftless skunk because he's illiterate. I called him a shiftless skunk because he doesn't have the guts to do anything about it!

Dear Stinky in Salt Lake City: It won't be easy to get to the bathtub in the next few years, but with a little ingenuity and determination you'll manage!

Dear Disgusted in West Jupiter: Bathmat wants to see more of the world. But we don't have it that good!

Dear Humiliated in Birdlips: Slap on a brown stick pen!

Dear Curious in Rock Junction: I don't care what you say. Weekly World News editor Dick Kulpa is A.I. man!

Dear Secretary in Milton: Bankers wear long johns, too. But they're still bankers!

Dear Confused in Calvert: Now why do you think your boxed pantyhose in your husband's briefcase?

Dotti will answer your letters — and tell it like it is. Just write to her, c/o Weekly World News, 600 South East Coast Ave., Lantana, Fla. 33462.

Ask Serena

Why do I see a skeleton when I look in my mirror?

Serena Sabak

Dear Serena: Whenever I look in a mirror I don't see myself, I see a hideous skeleton staring me in the face.

This has been the case ever since my mother died last June. And I probably don't have to tell you that this scares me to death. Please tell me what's going on, Serena. At the very least, tell me how to get the skeleton out of my mirrors. — Terrified in Salt Lake City

Dear Terrified: You have neglected the spiritual side of your life for many years now and the skeleton you see signifies the fact that, spiritually speaking, you have died. I strongly advise you to start praying and meditating daily. Open your heart to the wonders of life and the skeleton will vanish.

Dear Serena: I've been engaged for over a year now and, as you probably know, I'd like to get married in the spring. But my fiancé doesn't want to set a date. He says he wants to wait until he's financially secure.

I feel that he would like to start over again, too. But I'm willing to live in a small apartment and help him pay off his debts. Do you think we should get married? — Anxious in Wilmington

Dear Anxious: My crystal ball reveals that you and your husband will patch up your differences and get back together on February 28. I see great happiness — and four beautiful children — in your future!

Dear Serena: I lost my eyeglasses a couple of weeks ago and can't see more than a few inches in front of my face. Will you look into your crystal ball and see if we will get back together

HOW TO COLLECT $$$ FROM UNCLE SAM

Cash In On Government Giveaway Programs

A NEW BOOK, WRITTEN BY A former Federal investigator, tells how every American can collect their share of the $250 billion that will be handed out this year by Uncle Sam. The book explains how to collect social security before retirement, small business loans, income supplements, education benefits, farm loans, unemployment, job training, even welfare and food stamps. Here are just a few facts covered:

- How 10 million Americans collect monthly benefit checks from one government agency
- How almost 5 million children get monthly benefit checks
- How eligible couples collect up to $1,000 a month to supplement the family income
- How to qualify for disability payments even if 5.1 million existing applicants have been turned down
- How to know what to get back and start collecting monthly retirement benefits
- How you may be missing another one of these benefits right now
- How an added unemployment bonus for some of you could pay off in more than
- How to get free legal assistance
- How to get a good paying federal job
- How to get a $400,000 loan to start your own business (it's simple and the bank tells you exactly how to do it)
- How to collect a $250,000 loan to buy a home or ranch including livestock and equipment
- How to collect a $37,000 loan for a medical home, including lot
- How to collect a $15,000 loan for home improvement
- How to collect your family search to attend college, trade school or go on the job training
- How to get free medical coverage, including eye glasses and dental care
- How to collect Social Security checks a month to pay your apartment rent including utilities
- How to get up to a $100,000 small business loan, even if you are poor and unemployed
- How to collect thousands of dollars in free federal services.

With the help of the book, many families are now living more comfortably.

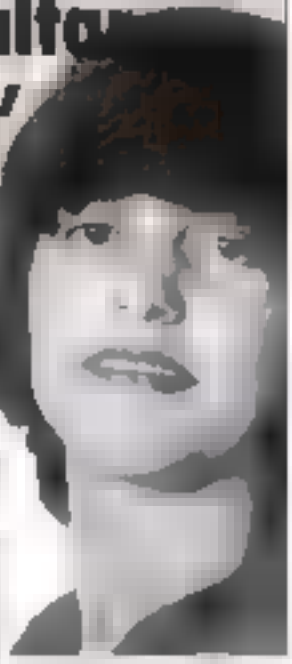
Would-be bride's shocking admission . . .

'I've been jilted at the alta[illegible] 9 times'



HEARTBROKEN: "I've been made the butt of jokes," says would-be bride Ida Lee.

By JOY BANNING

[illegible]

Ida Lee says she's given up her plans to marry after being jilted at the altar nine times — by eight different men.

[illegible]

[illegible] Ida Lee says. The impending [illegible] has caused her [illegible] to walk down the aisle again.

[illegible] "I would have made a husband happy if given the chance. But I'm not going to attempt marriage again."

Ida's tragic courtship tale began when she was 19 and residing in relatives quoted in the Bratislava Workers Week ly newspaper. Her family and friends gathered in the church for the Catholic ceremony and waited for more than two hours for the groom — who never showed up.

"He was just a youngster of 19 and most of us figured he got cold feet," said her uncle. Nadezdi Hlinak. "But Ida was heartbroken for months afterward."

On the rebound from the first wedding washout, Miss Lee became engaged again. Hlinak said. But, incredibly, the prospective groom dumped her on the day before the wedding.

"She went away for two years to work in Prague," the pair said. "She wanted to avoid the humiliation, the gossip and the pity. But she was so desperate to get married it effected her good sense where men were concerned."

Twice in Prague, Hlinak said, Ida made plans to marry the regulars office and once in a small wedding chapel. Then her first fiancé, Leopold Simon, apologized for his betrayal, begged her forgiveness and proposed again.

"The foolish girl accepted the apology and returned here to Bratislava," the uncle said. "Plans were made for an elaborate wedding and she was so happy — even joking about the first time Leopold jilted her. "But when the big moment came, Leopold said he couldn't go through with it. He jilted her again."

The shattered hard-luck bride was 28 when Leopold dumped her that second time. After that, she made plans for four more marriages. But each time, the groom backed off and cut out.

The latest and apparently last wedding was scheduled for August, at the home of her parents. But, as before, the big day ended in heartbreak. "She's in seclusion," Hlinak said. "She's had it with men and marriage. She says she will never think of

POLL: Spanking still tops with parents!

The vast majority of American parents regularly spank their children and child-care experts say the practice is raising kids.

The researchers like saying better than to point out that physical punishment is old-fashioned, crude and possibly even damaging to a kid's mental and emotional health.

And while many parents pay lip service to the newfangled psychology, surveys show most resort to the hand, belt, shoe, switch or hairbrush to make their children toe the line.

Just last year, experts polled 1,000 parents with children from 5 to 8 and found that a whopping 48 percent spanked their youngsters.

In a massive six-year survey of more than 8,000 college students between the ages of 18 and 24, Dr. John Knutson found that better than 80 percent were raised by parents who whupped them when they misbehaved.

Knutson, however, is convinced that spanking "is a seductively simple strategy for training children."

Dr. Kenneth Kay, a family therapist is even tougher on spanking than that. "Wearing your children's respect entails convincing them to behave as civilized human beings without yourself behaving like a brute."

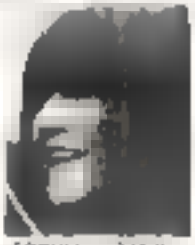
QUACK DOC'S TAPEWORM DIET REALLY WORKS . . .

. . . TOO WELL!

What was billed as the ultimate diet pill helped hundreds of fat people lose a ton of weight — but almost killed them in the process.

Police in Milan, Italy, allege that bogus doctor Franco Rizzuto packed his so-called Magic Diet capsules with powdered gelatin and tapeworm eggs that hatched and attached themselves to the dieters' intestines.



SOARED at 220 lbs.

Revised by experts that they had to take only one pill to lose all the weight they wanted effortlessly and that it was true," said Police Inspector Carlo Rapisto.

"Everything that went into their stomachs was devoured by the tapeworms. Dozens of adults grew to weights of 20 feet before the dieters had to be hospitalized for malnutrition."

Sofia Loren put on 30 lbs. to portray a fat lady in the movie "Two Women" and was willing to try anything to shed some pounds.

But three months after taking one of Rizzuto's tapeworm pills, she was desperately trying to put on weight because she was melting her skin and bones.

"I was thrilled to death when the weight fell off," she said. "I looked good and I felt pretty good too. But the more I ate the more weight I lost.

"Pretty soon I looked like a walking skeleton and people I was talking all the time. I would death be a good diet."

Jayne Mansfield, 33, had a similar experience. And Miss Mansfield, who weighs up to 220 lbs., is a woman who knows about dieting.

"I'd never seen so many people with that type of worm. One person I met, after whom I modeled his — and his daughter's pet poodle," Mansfield said. "We all thought we'd died and I had terrible pains from gas."

Mansfield immediately remembered that it was not long from a tapeworm infection. After some questioning we learned it to the diet pills I took."

Newspapers were alerted to the problem and published stories on the scam. Eventually, several hundred people came forward for treatment and blamed their problems on Rizzuto's pills.

He was later arrested on several charges, including fraud and endangering the public health.

We urge overweight people to see their doctors or at least follow one of the many sensible diets that have been developed by experts," said Luigi Tiberio of the Ministry of Health.

Man who died in shower found 6 months later — with the water STILL running!

By BILL JENKINS Special correspondent

A man who died in the shower stayed there until cops found him crumpled in a heap under the running water — six mind-blowing months later!

'He looked like a big, blue prune,' say police

"I don't mean to sound disrespectful but the stiff looked like a big blue prune," Police Lt. Raymond Jubert told newsmen in Toulouse, France.

"We don't suspect foul play because he had a history of heart problems and almost certainly had a heart attack.

"If the utility company hadn't noticed that his water and gas bills were zapped and sky high, we never would have found him. His body ultimately would have decomposed completely and washed down the shower drain."

The bizarre death of 61-year-old Bernard Seydel came as a shock to his neighbors, who had all but trained extensively and was often out of town.

"He ran up in the dress... way but it never dawned on me that he could be in his house dead," said Martha De... kitchen floor -- and drowned in your... who lives next door... a bucket of soapy water.

"It gives me the creeps just to think about it. I didn't even see the body and I'm still having terrible nightmares about it."

Lt. Jubert agreed that Seydel's body was "a ghastly sight."

"There was a large hole in the chest where the water from the shower was hitting it, and his flesh was grayish-blue and shriveled all over," he said.

"It's definitely not something I like to think about... but it's something I'll never forget."

Police in Toulouse said the circumstances surrounding Seydel's death were the strangest they had ever seen. Running a distant second was the case of a woman who slipped and fell while mopping her... and drowned in a bucket of soapy water.

ARMLESS WOMAN BOWLS PERFECT 300 GAME — WITH HER FEET!

By RICK TRACY

An amazing woman with no arms has shocked the sports world by bowling a perfect 300 game — with her feet.

Horrible cripped Vera DeMarco accom- pitched the fantastic feat while bowling with friends at a bowling alley in Berlin, Germany.

"I've been bowling since I was brought to the prime hospital and never even came close to a perfect game," said stunned Vera [illegible] who lost both of her arms in a freak fatal auto accident two years ago near Hamburg.

She spent eight months in a hospital and has undergone strenuous exercise and therapy to strengthen the muscles in the rest of her body, especially her legs.

An avid bowler before the life-threatening accident, the determined Vera decided to strengthen her leg muscles by bowling five games a day, five days a week.

A native New Yorker, Vera was working as a secretary for the military in Germany when her car rammed a truck-crushed headfirst into a tree and caught fire. Her arms were so badly burned, they had to be amputated.

But friends Amy Clayton and Ethel Hillman have been her constant companions since the accident. They were with her at the lanes the day Vera made bowling history.

"I'm on an upright position at the bowling with a back-up part locked in behind me," Vera said. "I draw my leg back behind me, then I swing it forward and release the ball. I use the back-up and aim for the second or third from the right and the ball will curve to the left."

Vera is shooting all over the lanes during practice — but the first ten strikes, as the ecstatic spectators [illegible] can't believe it happened.

Until her record-shattering performance, Vera's best score with her feet was a 200. The [illegible] average [illegible] for men is a respectable 170.

After her perfect game, Vera bowled 10 more strikes and her [illegible] score went over the 300 mark. She was disqualified by the Women's International Bowling Congress.

"I couldn't care less about the game being disqualified," Vera said. "I know I rolled it and we all [illegible] Ethel and Amy who witnessed every ball I threw. There were a couple of guys who walked in the lanes and saw me bowl five strikes."

Today Vera will be fitted with artificial arms and hands in two weeks.

"I'll practice with them until I get proficient enough to join a league," she said. "Now I just

Thieves forced to wear 40-lb. collars — FOR 25 YEARS!

By RICK TRACY

Two petty thieves have spent the last 25 years of their lives wearing painful, 40-lb. wooden collars locked around their necks — because they were too terrified to take them off.

The heavy, 3-foot square harness was punishment inflicted by a cruel warlord, who also banished them from their village in the Cameron Highlands 100 miles north of Singapore, Malaysia, for stealing a chicken in 1948.

"Instant death was the penalty for removing the collars or returning to the village without the warlord's permission," said a police inspector.

The warlord's word was law in the Cameron Highlands in those days.

So the two teenage cooking thieves lived in disgrace in the jungle — [illegible] like wild animals for a quarter of a century — waiting for permission to return to the village.

LYING IS GOOD FOR YOU, SAYS EXPERT

Tiptoeing past touchy social encounters with a few well-chosen white lies is not a sin, an expert says — in fact, it can be good for you.

That's because white lies help people deal with situations which otherwise might be insulting, hurtful or downright dangerous, according to psychologist Dr. Terry Baver.

"White lies allow for people to deal with one another with a minimum of friction," Dr. Baver told The NEWS.

"They protect the liar from the destructive aspects of telling the truth, and protect the person who's lied to from being hurt."

Dr. Baver cautions that people should be aware of when they're lying and why, since some lies can be harmful. But if you're lying to accomplish a good end, there's no problem, she says.

"For example, if a teenager is all dressed up for his first date and doesn't look too hot but won't do anything about it, don't give him your honest opinion when he asks how he looks," Dr. Baver explained.

"Say, 'You look great,' so he'll have self-confidence and feel better about himself.

"If you express what you feel, it would be destructive," she said. "Lying is bad for you if you lie because you are afraid to confront people or because you don't wish to deal with problems," Dr. Baver said. "But honesty, too, can be bad.

"Honesty often is just an excuse for being selfish or hostile," she said. "You could be using the truth to hurt somebody who has made you angry.

"A real relationship needs honesty, of course, but to say harsh things without working them through doesn't benefit anyone.

"And we don't work things through with people we know casually."

Gal foils attacker with YEOW! grab to the groin!

A gutsy coed turned the tables on a husky creep who attacked her on campus and made him yell "Uncle" — when she grabbed his groin and squeezed.

MOM SEES SON'S PUNK HAIRCUT — & LAUGHS HERSELF TO DEATH!

Woman gasped for breath — and dropped dead

Mother-of-two Lucille Meliete got a look at her son's new haircut — and died laughing!

The 52-year-old woman's guffaws led to a severe asthma attack, which in turn triggered a fatal heart attack, an au[illegible] showed. The Detroit divorcee [illegible] stone cold dead within four hours of her laughing fit.

"She was just so [illegible] with Buddy's new punk cut — she just thought it was hilarious," recalled the woman's 15-year-old daughter Pat.

"She was laughing and laughing and getting real red in the face.

"Then all of a sudden she had trouble getting her breath. She was gasping and kind of choking.

"We took her to the doctor and he sent her right to the emergency room. While we were there she had the heart attack and died. It was just terrible."

Relatives say high school dropout Buddy feels responsible for his mother's death.

The 18-year-old mechanic's helper says if he hadn't gotten his bizarre haircut, Lucille would still be alive.

According to members of the family, Lucille was in excellent health before her death, except for occasional bouts with asthma.

"She was feeling well and she was happy with her life, so we had no reason to suspect she was in danger," says Pat. "My mom was always so good humored and she always had a lovely laugh.

"But the day she died, she laughed herself sick. I mean.

she took one look at Buddy and just freaked out."

Lucille had heard from her son's apartment roommates that he'd gone overboard on a new punk hairstyle and she said she was dying to get a look at it. Buddy rather sweet-talked his mother's hairdresser to show her. She hesitated after she asked to see it.

When Buddy walked into the living room of his mom's apartment on November 15, Lucille took one look and started to chuckle, her kids recall. Then she began to roar with laughter.

"She was slapping her thigh and having a great big laugh when all of a sudden she started wheezing and coughing," [illegible] she fell to pieces. It seems like one minute she was laughing and the next minute she was dead.

"Our only consolation is that she died happy."

INCREDIBLE! Homeless Guy Trask demonstrates for photographers how he sneaks into hospitals all over the country for free room and board.

HOMELESS MAN SNEAKS INTO HOSPITALS — WHERE HE LIVES LIKE A KING!

Grubby Guy Trask is a tattered tramp who sucks out in alleys and munches munchies from strangers till he gets a yen for the comforts of home. Then cunning Guy sneaks into a hospital, crawls into bed — and lives like a king till they kick him out!

By JOE SIMMS

"Most people dread going to the hospital, but to me it's paradise," the lucky bum told reporters.

"I get to sleep on crisp clean sheets for a change and I don't have to worry about some lowlife ripping me on the head and stealing my shoes.

"And every four or five hours a pretty nurse brings me a free meal with dessert and everything. What more could a fellow like me want, anyway?"

Grungy Guy, 56, has mangled his way into dozens of hospitals from Boston to Bakersfield over the past six years — and he's gotten so good at it, he's been saluting his deathbed buddies to plus the same game.

"The fellas, they'd see me sneak off for a couple of days and come back all clean and pretty and they all wanted to know how I did it," said the crafty panhandler. "So I've been showing them all a few tricks because you can't just walk into a hospital and crawl into bed, you know.

"They'll kick you out in a minute if you don't do everything just right — but I used to work in a hospital, so I know the ropes."

The freeloading bum's encyclopedic knowledge of hospitals began the day he got hit by a car in Kalamazoo, Mich., back in 1985 and wound up with a busted leg.

"They kept me in a hospital for three days and it was absolute bliss," he recalled. "It was the first time I'd been warm and dry and clean in years, and I felt like a king.

"I was sorry to leave, but I knew I'd be back. So I made sure I got out of there with a full belly and a pocketful of sandwiches for the road."

Guy's hospital-hopping career was launched.

"I'd get a bad cough and go to the emergency room at a hospital and tell them I was homeless and had no place to go," he said. "They'd admit me for a couple of days and I'd be set.

"Sometimes I'd get a bad cough and go to the emergency room at a hospital and tell them I was homeless and had no place to go.

Forget about the 'Good Old Days!'

FAMILY LIFE IS BETTER TODAY THAN IT'S EVER BEEN!

If you believe the American family is falling apart at the seams, you're all wet. It's a lot closer-knit today than it could have been in the past — even with a goody-goody family like the Waltons.

That's the [illegible] findings of a survey of more than 4,000 people.

The survey concluded that the American family is alive and well after all.

"The strong ties between grown children and their parents, brothers and sisters are evident in the extraordinary amount of socializing they do," researchers said.

The survey debunks the idea of the "nostalgic past image" of families like the Waltons, where three generations lived happily together, labelling it "pure fiction."

A University of California psychologist said more American children know their grandparents than in the old days, and visit them more regularly today than they did in the past.

This is partly because until the early 1900s, grandparents hardly existed since the average life span was 48 years.

Because more grandparents are alive today, 76 percent of adults say their parents influence their ideas on child-rearing more than any other source, including TV doctors, experts or friends, the survey concluded.

Other findings revealed that women with one or both parents living visit them about 62 times a year while men average 47 visits a year.

CIVIL WAR TRIVIA

By ROBERT CUTLER [illegible]

The Civil War started in Wilmer McLean's front yard and ended in his parlor. Both sides lost more soldiers to disease than to combat. And by war's end, Confederate money was inflating at a rate of 9,900 percent a year!

That's just some of the fascinating trivia found in author Rod Gragg's Civil War Quiz and Fact Book ($8.95, Harper and Row). Here's more:

● There actually were two Fort Sumters — and a military installation in South Carolina, the other a bordello in Washington, D.C.

● The war began and ended on farmer Wilmer McLean's property. The first major land battle, First Bull Run, spilled into his yard. He later bought a farm in Virginia, near Appomattox, and Gen. Robert E. Lee surrendered to Gen. Ulysses S. Grant in his parlor.

● The U.S. government shelled out a whopping $2.9 million a day to finance the war.

● When it came to exchanging prisoners, one general was worth 60 enlisted men. A lieutenant was worth four enlisted men.

● The average Confederate [illegible] was under 5 feet, 8 inches tall.

● General Grant was a clerk in a leather goods shop when the war began. Seven years later, he was President of the United States.

● The bloody Battle of Cold Harbor in Virginia was named after a tavern that didn't serve hot food.

● The official pay for a Civil War private was $13 a month until May 1864, when it was hiked to $16 a month.

● Union doctors worried that a condition called "useless efforts" was harming soldiers' [illegible] figured out what to do about it. Noxious effluvia is a polite term for the odors generated by men forced to live in crowded camps without toilets.

● "Pigtail" and "hardtack" were Confederate nicknames for contraband tobacco.

● At the Battle of Spotsylvania, Union Gen. John Sedgwick said of the enemy: "They couldn't hit an elephant at this distance." Seconds later a Rebel sharpshooter shot him dead.

Now it's official — kissing DOES cause AIDS!

WARNING!

By SUSAN JAMISON / Staff writer

It doesn't take dirty needles, transfusions or sex to give you AIDS, a top expert says — a simple kiss will do it!

Any kiss involving an exchange of saliva puts lovers at risk if one of the two sweethearts is HIV-positive, according to Dr Helen Singer Kaplan of the Sex Therapy and Education Program at New York Hospital.

"Saliva is an ideal reservoir for the AIDS virus," says Dr Kaplan, who is also a professor at Cornell University Medical College. "In fact, the count is larger in saliva than in the blood of an HIV positive person.

"And if the [illegible] has lacerations on his lower gums or gums — a common occurrence — the chance is increased."

Dr Kaplan made her shocking statements in an interview with author Howard Rue last August, but she expected that her revelations would stir up little official reaction. The Manhattan expert who has worked with AIDS victims and AIDS researchers for years thinks authorities are purposely [illegible] instead of spreading the dread [illegible] by virus.

"You get dental dams every place," she says.

"They will say there are no reliable statistics, no [illegible] tests. They will tell you that doctors disagree. They will tell you that my information is invalid. But I stand by my statements."

Dr. Kaplan advises [illegible] with the lips closed to be [illegible] safe from the AIDS [illegible]

CRUSH DANCING

Schoolkids' DEADLY new fad

By TANYA MOODER / Correspondent

Crazy kids in India have come up with a new party fad that is sweeping through schools and universities: A bizarre craze called "crush dancing" in which participants pile up on top of a pal's body and rock and roll until they drop.

The teenagers compete to see who can heap the most dancers on the top of an upended table lying over a buddy who is stretched out on his back. The practice has resulted in three deaths to date.

"The champion is a 17-year-old guy from New Delhi who supported 17 kids," says Navru Ghosh, a student from Madras. His right hip bone was broken but he lasted two minutes and his pelvis, long enough for an entire rock song to play. The kids were dancing and screaming on top of him, but he never even grimaced in pain."

Authorities say they've tried to stamp out the bizarre practice by spreading the word among youngsters that crush dancing is dangerous.

Yet in spite of extensive coverage of tragic deaths associated with crush dancing, kids continue to indulge in the fad, often suffering permanently crippling injury in an attempt to set records.

"You're disqualified if your pants pops," says Ghosh, 15. "And if you have to quit off the dancing because you're in pain, people think you're a wimp."

The fad is spreading to younger and younger kids, and a recent article in an Indian newspaper featured photos of kids in their early teens hospitalizing on a buddy.

"We may outlaw the practice so we can discourage kids by arresting them," a New Delhi police spokesman said. "We've got to stop them before we create a generation of people who are permanently crippled by this ridiculous pastime."

NEWSPAPERS in India printed this picture of a July 1993 crush dancing party at a school in New Delhi.

Americans WEREN'T the first to land on lunar surface!

CLINTON TO PROBE FOOTPRINTS FOUND

New President wants to photos of bizarre tracks

BARE HUMAN footprints on moon are shown in this world-exclusive unretouched NASA photo, taken as astronauts walked on the lunar surface for the first time in 1969.

PICTURE TAKEN BY REMOTE CAMERA ABOARD APOLLO 11!

By KARL JENSEN
Special correspondent

UFO researchers have called on president-elect Bill Clinton to open the files on one of the most chilling space cover-ups of all time — the discovery of bare human footprints when Apollo 11 astronauts landed on the moon in 1969!

Far from brushing off their demands as previous administrations have done, Clinton has requested copies of top secret photographs and documents that NASA has hidden from the world for the past 23 years.

That's the word from astrophysicist Kang Man-pang, who stunned the world when he obtained secret NASA photographs of the footprints in 1969 and is now heading up a group of more than 400 scientists and researchers who are now demanding that Clinton make the NASA files public and let the truth be known once and for all.

ernment has chosen to keep this matter secret for 23 long years but Bill Clinton has a golden opportunity to right the wrong after he is inaugurated later this month," Dr. Kang told reporters in Washington.

"The implications of finding human footprints on the moon are absolutely staggering," he continued, "and if Mr. Clinton is half as courageous and forthright as he claims to be, he's got to order NASA to open the files and tell us everything it knows.

WORLD NEWS January 12, 1993

BARE HUMAN ON MOON!

see top secret NASA taken 23 years ago!

ASTROPHYSICIST Kang Man-geung wants NASA to tell all about the mystery footprints.

PRESIDENT-ELECT Bill Clinton is expected to order a complete review of all NASA files pertinent to the human footprints.

"Somebody was walking on the moon before America's astronauts arrived there — and that somebody was doing it without a space suit!"

...and that somebody was doing it without a space suit," he added. "This has nothing to do with national security. People have a right to know."

There was no immediate response from Clinton but transition-team insiders privately confirmed that the president-elect has requested copies of the NASA files and will decide whether to release them by the time he is inaugurated on January 20.

As the Weekly World News previously reported, Kang's 1989 allegations stunned U.S. space officials, several of whom turned and ran when they were confronted by reporters outside NASA offices in Washington, D.C.

Other sources also declined to comment, even after they were told that the expert had official NASA photographs of 13 bare footprints that were found on the moon when U.S. astronauts landed there during the Apollo mission in the summer of 1969.

"The footprints were taken by a remote camera aboard the lunar lander and came to us from an unimpeachable NASA source," said Kang. "They were accompanied by open-and-shut NASA documents that concluded the footprints are definitely human and very fresh."

The NASA documents were dated Aug. 3, 1969, less than two weeks after the nine-day Apollo mission ended on July 24.

Blacks of text had been observed by NASA censors that the statements of fact and analysis that remained made it clear that the agency suspected an extraterrestrial connection. "Common sense would tell you that a hapless human wouldn't have gotten to the moon on his own — someone or something had to take him there," explained Kang.

"It would also have been impossible for America's astronauts to have made the prints because they were wearing heavy boots and space suits.

"So the obvious conclusion is that space aliens took a batefoot human to the moon and for reasons unknown, made him walk on the lunar surface."

While awaiting Clinton's decision, Kang is appealing to "concerned scientists and individuals everywhere to keep the pressure on."

STUDY: Grouchy people live longer

It's true! The good die young — or at least younger.

That's the surprising finding of two psychologists who have studied the personalities of hundreds of elderly men and when old people are caught up in a stressful situation, the ones who are mean and nasty live longer than those who are friendly, open and cooperative.

"The good do die younger, at part on aging. "The majority of people we studied were under the stress of relocating into a retirement community, but the death of a spouse or sickness could cause the same thing."

moving were generally ill-tempered. "These people were more angry and suspicious. They're the kind of people you wouldn't want as friends," he said.

give in when bad things happen to them," said another expert. The nasty, cranky types fight back when things go wrong — and it's better for them, he added. People who react in anger
